“ Mom, You will forever be missed! There are so many memories that run thru my mind. All the selfless things you did for us, always having a giving heart and spirit whenever money came your way you always shared instead of hoarding. You truly lived one day at a time. (Give us "this" day our daily bread) and we never went a day without a meal. The memories that I shared with our Pastor to share at the service was how you always had dinner on the table at 5 o'clock with that three course meal with 8 kids around the table, later in life we knew not to call you at 5 o'clock because your phone would be off the hook because it was dinner time. Joyce also told a story about how in NJ you would holler across the street out the door their names, Arlene, Carol, Joyce, it's dinner time and whenever they seen dad's car pull in after work they would tell their friends it's supper time, they have to go. I remember every Sunday those traditional spaghetti and meatballs or fried chicken and being Italian it was mostly spaghetti and meatballs, or sausage, or beacon in the homemade sauce. I always remember coming home from school smelling dinner and baked apple pies, each and every one always tasted unique. Well, when I think about the saying, "It's 5 o'clock somewhere" I know that for you it's 5 o'clock in heaven now and for us living still on earth, it's one minute to midnight for this fig tree generation to be called home also, until we meet again, I will miss you mom! ~your daughter Michele Warner (The Warners, Lee & Michele, Joshua & Joel)
