“ My memory of my sister Esther....When I was a little girl I poured out her perfume on the floor...She asked why I did that ..My response was that it was just water in the bottle..She did not get angry at me....This last Christmas she text me if I would go to the dollar store and pick up poop candy..When I read this I was at work..I laughed at what she was asking me to do... That the poop candy was for her son Warren and George..So after my shift..I text her saying I was on my way to the dollar store to pickup her shit....She text me back saying she had not laughed that hard in along time that I made her day....I will miss my beautiful sister..Our get together's with lots of laughter and fun...I will miss her voice ,her beautiful smile....And the 12 days of Christmas Egreetings card she sent to me and George.... Till we meet again..I Love you more..Love me your baby sister Eve...

“ Esther I love you and will miss our long telephone conversations. We shared a truly worst day possible when I lost my Desi and you lost Jeffrey. We cried a lot trying to explain to ourselves why me? Did we do something wrong? Were we being punished? The Lord knew we would lose our son and daughter and I questioned why not someone else. I know that our children are safe and loved dancing on the of tops of flowers, no tears or pain. I know that they are sharing incredible joy. To those of you grieving the loss know we will all meet again. Remember the times Evelyn, Mom, me and you got together and had such fun. Thank you for being such a loving sister. I needed you and you were there. middle sister, Marie

“ There was a time when I had a car show to go to. Dad had called and said the family reunion is this Sunday. I said well I'm going to a car show. So I will not be able to make it. we finished our conversation.

A few minutes later my wife was calling me from the porch to pick up the phone and it was your mother. So picked it up and said hi Mommy what's up. She said it would be nice if I could go to the family reunion. I replied I have a life to live to. She said it can be done after the reunion. So I attended the reunion.
