“ I remember Keith growing up, as he and my brother-in-law , Tim Westbrook were best friends. They were inseparable at that time. Tim passed away a few years ago. Now they will be reunited. RIP Keith. My thoughts and prayers are with all the family.

“ Keith's knowledge and abilities were wide-spread and often surprising to mewho knows all this stuff?! Music release dates, who played back up on albums..Star Trek episodes, tons of trivia....and then the all important pharmacist stuff, his knowledge of medicines, treatments, and how to explain them simply. Keith was willing to share with anyone who wanted to learn or needed help. His enjoyment of books and movies was large and selective. All anyone had to say was, "Inconceivable!" and lines from the Princess Bride came spilling out with a smile! We agreed Alastair Sim's portrayal of Scrooge was the best of the Dickens' Christmas Carol movies. (I think he liked Charlie Brown's version too....go figure!)

At work he was a regular "MacGyver"he could fix anything with a paperclip! One Christmas we wrote a little ditty called the "Paperclip Man" and gifted him with a new supply.

There are a so many Keith stories .. In reference to his initial cancer recovery I always said, I witnessed a modern day miracle. He fought hard and courageously each time.

To say he will be missed and was a good man seem insufficient. Myself, along with other friends and beloved family will take comfort in these and many other Keith stories in the days and years ahead. We were fortunate to have his life intersect with our own... I am grateful for it.
