“ I remember as a kid going hunting for the first time as I was jealous that my older brother could go and I couldn't.

Skip and Bob put me on a corn row without a gun. We had two or three dogs. I started crossing corn rows as I walked. At one point I heard someone say hey Dave, you need to stay on your row. Skipped explained how I needed to maintain the lane and never cross for safety. The men took several birds that day. On another day I got to shoot his side-by-side. He was a cool dude and I would always look forward to his stories during pheasant season.
