“ My parents always considered Bob & Joyce among their dearest and closest friends. I'll always remember all the family cookouts and get-togethers while I was growing up - birthdays, holidays - with all of us and Bob & Joyce and family. No family gathering was complete without them. I'll never forget one Christmas, when we were young and my Dad was still perpetuating the "Santa" tradition, he asked Bob to come while we were all away at midnight Mass, and place some of the wrapped gifts under the tree, and leave footprints in the snow, so that when we returned from church he could exclaim that we must have interrupted Santa and we had better get back to bed pronto!! WHO OTHER than a great friend would agree to that late night assignment, on Christmas Eve!! I remember riding with Susie in the back of Bob's truck while he did his milk route, stopping at farms in our neck of the woods, picking up milk cans and putting them in the truck, and taking them to the creamery in New Milford at the end. (Susie and we would stand behind the cab, singing at the top of our lungs, while Bob drove - and probably plugged his ears.) They have always been great friends, and the most loving and generous people with their time and talents. Bob lived a long and fulfilling life and was loved well by the people whose lives he touched; he will be fondly remembered, and greatly missed. Heaven is a richer place today, and we are blessed with his memories.
