“ "Sister: A person who's been where you've been; someone you can call when things aren't going right; is more than just family; a sister is a forever friend." Sandy was not only my sister; she was a second mother, my confidant, and my friend. She gave me my first job, waitressing in her coffee shop. She taught me so many things, including how to cook, although I have never come close to cooking as well as she did. We went blueberry picking together, then she taught me how to make pie crust, and pie filling with the fresh blueberries. I could fill a book with all of my memories. The thought of never hearing her voice again is hard to even imagine. I will miss her for the rest of my life.
